1

What would you do with this statement?

Annual waste costs among GreenWaste participants fell by 669 AED per business in a year.

Source: H2-A2, the mean cost of the same participant businesses before and after.

Act | Ask first | Do not act

Compared to what? How big? How sure?

What is missing, and why would the answer matter?

GreenWaste is a fictional training case. These statements are exercise material for you to check. Do not accept them as conclusions.

2

What would you do with this statement?

The effect of GreenWaste is a 669 AED reduction in annual cost per business, with a 95% confidence interval of 654 to 684 AED saved.

Source: The city before-and-after model: the same 4,794 participant businesses, measured twice. The model has no comparison businesses.

Act | Ask first | Do not act

Compared to what? How big? How sure?

What is missing, and why would the answer matter?

3

What would you do with this statement?

The fall in participants' costs is statistically significant ($p < 0.001$), so every business in the country should join GreenWaste.

Source: The city before-and-after model, which tests whether the mean change among participant businesses is zero.

Act | Ask first | Do not act

Compared to what? How big? How sure?

What is missing, and why would the answer matter?

4

What would you do with this statement?

Mean annual costs fell by 669 AED among participant businesses and rose by 143 AED among comparison businesses.

Source: H2-A2, the mean change in each of the two groups. This card gives no interval for the difference between the groups.

Act | Ask first | Do not act

Compared to what? How big? How sure?

What is missing, and why would the answer matter?

Place each card, then explain your reason.

Place each card under Act, Ask first or Do not act. Explain your reason, using words and card numbers. More than one missing question can be a good answer. Say which action you mean: acting on a descriptive finding does not have to mean expanding the programme.

Missing question	Act	Ask first	Do not act
Compared to what?
How big?
How sure?

Which evidence supports a disputed placement? What answer would change your advice?